

FACULTY-LED STUDY ABROAD

IRELAND

Literary Cities: New York & Dublin

ACADEMICS

Students will be registered for the following course for the Spring semester 2017:

Literary Cities 0122-252-001 (3 credits)

FACULTY DIRECTORS

Louise Geddes, Asst. Professor of English, lgeddes@adelphi.edu

Lahney Preston-Matto, Associate Professor of English, prestonmatto@adelphi.edu

PROGRAM FEES

The estimated cost of this program is: $3,370

Price includes:

- Roundtrip airfare New York to Dublin
- Shared accommodations
- Ireland-based transportation, including bus passes in Dublin & Cork
- CISI health insurance
- Continental breakfasts daily
- 2 group dinners

Additional Expenses:

- Most meals
- Personal expenses
- Passport fees
- Luggage fees
- Adelphi Study Abroad fee of $150 (charged to tuition account)

Tuition

- Included in spring tuition for traditional undergraduate students, as long as student does not exceed 17 credits.

Adelphi's Manhattan Center Fridays @ 1:00

(January 27—March 10)

Ireland Travel Dates March 11 - 18th, 2017

Ireland is an enchanting country with a vibrant culture and a unique literary history. Literary Cities is a faculty-led study abroad program designed to examine the Irish immigrant experience, by comparing New York City and Dublin and exploring how New York City is influenced by the Irish diaspora. The course begins and ends at home, reading classical Irish texts and touring the Irish monuments of New York City. Students also travel to Ireland over spring break where they will reside in Dublin and examine the origins of the American Irish identity. In Ireland, students will visit Croke Park, Dublin Castle, and take an overnight trip to Cork. This is an extraordinary opportunity to look at the shaping of American culture, and to enjoy one of the most beautiful cities in Europe. The course is open to majors and non-majors, and carries global learning credit and humanities for general education.

