

Civic Engagement Projects

Giving Back

The importance of giving back: Participating in community service initiatives can be an extremely rewarding experience. Working in different communities, enables you to learn about the world in a way that does not come from reading it in books, seeing it online or through social media. You may also gain experiences that can help broaden your horizons or help you discover new talents or interests that you never knew you had. Instead of thinking about how you can get these service hours done the quickest, think about the impact this service will leave on the community you are serving and what you can gain from it. Networking with the community and service sites is a huge life skill you can gain and use in the long run of things. Think about what is important to you. First think about what your values are. Then, look critically at the world around you. What needs do you see in your community or the communities that surround you? Finally, ask yourself: How can I respond? What talents or resources do I have that can address these needs? And what is the next step to helping those in need at your service sites or in your local communities.

Commitment is a requirement when signing up to do a service project. Most of these service sites rely on volunteers. Best practices is letting them know in advance if you can not make it or have to reschedule. You are responsible to find someone to go in your place if you do not let the site know in advance.

Is there a difference between volunteerism, community service, and civic engagement?

The answer is yes:

Civic Engagement: Active unpaid participation in the community, and usually involves working with others and facing real life problems and issues head-on. It helps you make a connection between yourself, the skills you have to offer and the needs of the community. There should be a service learning aspect to the program you participate in.

Community Service: is work done by a person or group of people that benefits others. It is often done near the area where you live, so your own community reaps the benefits of your work or an area that is in need. It is a non-paying job performed by one person or a group of people for the benefit of the community or its institutions. Active unpaid participation in the community. Community service focuses on creating positive change in the community where both the server and served learn from their interaction.

Volunteerism: -the principle of donating time and energy for the benefit of others. A person who freely offers to take part in an enterprise or undertake a task. Freely offering to do something

Peer Engagement Specialist

People in recovery or who have a personal family experience with recovery and expertise in addiction services are available to provide support, encouragement and guidance in finding appropriate services. View a list of Peer Engagement Specialists.

Family Support Navigator

This new service will help people and their families better understand the progression of addiction, provide guidance on how to navigate insurance issues and offer information on how to access treatment services. View a list of Family Support Navigators.

Youth Clubhouse

Clubhouses offer services and supports to help young people progress in their recovery. Built on a core of peer-driven supports and services that encourage and promote a drug-free lifestyle, the clubhouse model provides a restorative environment for young people whose lives have been disrupted because of their addiction and who would like the support of others in recovery. Clubhouses for youth are for people ages 12 to 17. Clubhouses for young adults are for people ages 18 to 21. View a list of Youth Clubhouses.

Recovery Center

The centers provide health, wellness and other critical supports to people and families who are recovering from a substance use disorder or are seeking recovery services for a family member or friend. They provide a community-based, non-clinical setting that is safe, welcoming and alcohol/drug-free for any member of the community. The centers promote long-term recovery through skill-building, recreation, employment readiness and the opportunity to connect with peers who are going through similar challenges. View a list of Recovery Centers.

Regional Addiction Resource Center

The Regional Addiction Resource Centers (RARC) are available to assist people, families and communities in accessing local resources for those facing addiction problems. The RARC help identify local prevention resources, local treatment opportunities, recovery services and other supports such as Family Navigators, medication drop boxes, Peer Engagement, 12 step groups, naran/naloxone trainings, Youth Clubhouses and local speaker's bureaus. The RARC can also organize events based on community requests. View a list of Regional Addiction Resources Centers.

24/7 Open Access Centers

Services offered:

- For the Birds! Program of NYC: For the Birds! is an elementary education program that teaches environmental awareness and appreciation of nature through the study of birds. During a 4, 8 or 16 week session, public and private school students in grades 2 through 4 learn about their natural environment through classroom lessons, outdoor field trips, and a conservation project designed to improve bird habitat in the local community. For the Birds! exposes students, usually for the first time, to the idea that their own neighborhoods provide valuable habitat to birds and other urban wildlife (Contact Rich Santangelo)
- Coastal Stewardship: Volunteer events to help protect beach-nesting and migratory coastal bird species. Volunteers have the opportunity to help install symbolic fencing around piping plover nesting habitat, join beach clean-ups, build wooden shelters for nesting terns, and travel to and help locate and GPS tern nests on Great Gull Island.
- Be a Good Egg Outreach Program: Outreach initiative that strives to reduce human disturbance threats to Piping Plovers and other beach-nesting bird species. We host “on the beach” outreach events on weekends in June and July, during which we table at the entrances of priority Long Island beaches and encourage beach-goers to share the shore birds. We provide visitors with pamphlets and brochures about beach-nesting bird biology, our conservation work, and information on how to reduce disturbance to birds. Then, we ask beach-goers to sign our “Be a Good Egg” pledge and therefore agree to stay out of fenced-off nesting areas, keep trash off the beach, and to keep dogs off of nesting beaches (Email NYcoast@audubon.org or call (516) 922-3200)

Volunteer Opportunities Available

SAFER Volunteer (Hospital Advocacy)

Volunteers Needed to Work with Adult Victims of Rape, Sexual Assault and/or Domestic Violence and Child Victims of Sexual Abuse and/or Assault. The Safe Center provides resources for victims of rape, sexual assault and/or domestic violence at all the Nassau County Hospitals. The Safe Center connects victims to advocates through the SAFER Program (Survivors Advocate For Emergency Response). This program makes it possible for trained volunteers to provide support and advocacy for victims in hospitals. After a 30-hour training, volunteers become advocates. Volunteers are scheduled to be on-call for 12 hour periods to assist victims at any of the local Nassau County hospitals. Volunteers are asked to serve a minimum of 2 shifts (12 hours each) per month. Volunteer Advocates must have 10 hours additional training, provided free by The Safe Center, on-going every year after initial training. There are also periodic supervisory meetings. Advocates must reside in Nassau County. Next class starts October 2nd.

Child Waiting Room Volunteer

Volunteers provide oversight of the Child Waiting Room while family members receive agency services. Typically children between the ages of 2 and teen years may be waiting for about an hour while their parent is in a session. Oversight may include reading to smaller children, assisting school-aged children with homework, playing a game with kids, and attending to specific needs.

Community Outreach

Working with The Safe Center's Education Department, volunteers work to advance the cause against family violence through awareness and education. Volunteers represent the agency at health and/or information fairs to provide information on programs and services, as well as information on domestic violence, child abuse and neglect, dating violence, sexual assault, and elder abuse.

Police Project

Trained volunteers spend a few hours a day, for 1-2 days a week, making outreach calls to victims of domestic violence, who have been identified as such by the Nassau County Police Dept. Volunteers will be checking in with victims to see if they want to avail themselves of our services and will document these calls into a computer database.

Office Work

Working with the clerical/administrative staff, volunteers support various office duties such as mailing, filing, copying, answering phones, and other general clerical functions.

Counselor Assistants (CAs) answer business phones and help counselors in a variety of ways. In addition interested CAs can join our community outreach team, representing LICC at area schools and community events.

More Information

Counselors answer all of the hotlines and provide online counseling and counseling to walk-in clients. As the center is widely recognized for its expertise in crisis-intervention counseling training, counselors will receive an intensive training about a variety of current issues affecting youth and families.

Requirements:

Time Commitment

- A commitment of 3-4 hours per week.
- Counselors-in-training and Counselors are asked to volunteer 6 hours per week. Counselors MUST commit to do at least 200 hours (approximately 8 months) of shift time after they have completed the counselor training.

Trainings

- CAs must complete a 9-hour training course, which meets once a week for 3 weeks. This training is held every other month. All volunteers must train FIRST as Counselor Assistants.

Counselors must receive Crisis-intervention counseling training (an intensive training about a variety of current issues affecting youth and families). It consists of two consecutive weekend "marathons," followed by 18 weekly information sessions. Concurrently, trainees do shifts with experienced counselors at their own convenience. It takes approximately nine months to complete the training. Then, once the training is complete, we require that you commit to at least 200 hours (approximately eight months at six hours a week) as a crisis counselor to repay for the amount of time invested in your training. Please understand that by undergoing counselor training, you would be committing to be involved with LICC for at least two years.

Counselor training is held two times a year: September and March.

Internship offered: The Nassau County Executive Office Internship Program was created to cultivate Nassau's leaders of tomorrow, prevent the 'brain drain', and tap into the incredible potential of Nassau County's youth. The program, with its dedicated interns, interactive seminars, and carefully cultivated inclusive environment, provides students with a full experience of how their local government works.

One of the essential goals of the program is to provide interns with access to individuals who can impart knowledge gained by real world experience. Through weekly seminars, participants have met with County Legislators, high ranking members of the administration, and even the County Executive.

All interns are also assigned to one of the members of the Special Projects Team, who will act as a mentor and confidant. While each intern's specific office will be responsible for their day to day progress, the Special Projects Team will be charged with monitoring the overall performance of an intern.
